How to make older adults believe that you share the principles?

Respect Independence and Autonomy

This is your house, it is up to you what goes in there.

It's up to you how you would like to make changes, or make no change at all.

I am not here to force changes on you, let's figure out a way together

I will follow your lead.

Can you please take me to the kitchen?

Would you mind if I take a look at your bathroom?

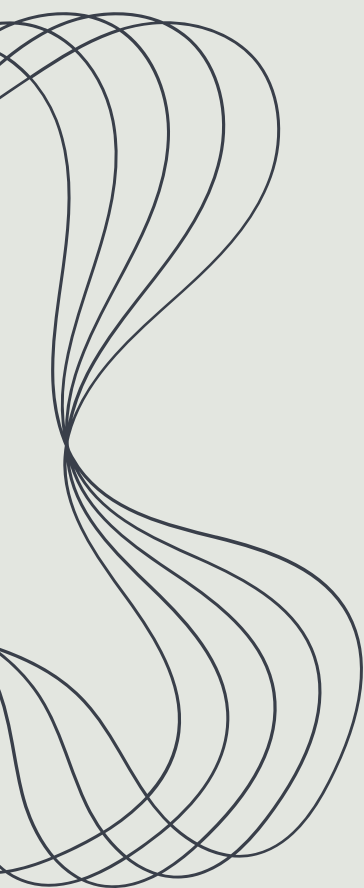

I can see how important they (items) are to you.

Making a change is hard.

It's difficult to go through the recovery knowing that something has changed forever.

You are frustrated when, all of a sudden, things don't work the way they used to. You can't do the same thing you could a few months ago.
